What Is Freedom?

Learning Targets
• Analyze the use of rhetorical features in an argumentative text.
• Compare how a common theme is expressed in different texts.
• Present, clarify, and challenge ideas in order to propel conversations.

Preview
In this activity, you will read a speech delivered by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and two parts of the Constitution of the United States to root your thinking in the foundational documents of the nation.

Setting a Purpose for Reading
• Underline words and phrases that define freedom.
• Highlight words and phrases that describe the concepts of America and American.
• Put a star next to particularly moving rhetoric.
• Circle unknown words and phrases. Try to determine the meaning of the words by using context clues, word parts, or a dictionary.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR
President Franklin Delano Roosevelt delivered this State of the Union speech on January 6, 1941. The speech outlines four key human rights. It acted as a reminder to the nation of the reasons for supporting Great Britain in its fight against Germany. Ultimately, the United States declared war on Germany in December 1941.

Speech
From The Four Freedoms

by Franklin D. Roosevelt

Chunk 1

1 As men do not live by bread alone, they do not fight by armaments alone. Those who man our defenses and those behind them who build our defenses must have the stamina and the courage which come from unshakable belief in the manner of life which they are defending. The mighty action that we are calling for cannot be based on a disregard of all the things worth fighting for.

2 The nation takes great satisfaction and much strength from the things which have been done to make its people conscious of their individual stake in the preservation of democratic life in America. Those things have toughened the fiber of our people, have renewed their faith and strengthened their devotion to the institutions we make ready to protect.

disregard: lack of concern

fiber: essential character
Certainly this is no time for any of us to stop thinking about the social and economic problems which are the root cause of the social revolution which is today a supreme factor in the world. For there is nothing mysterious about the foundations of a healthy and strong democracy.

The basic things expected by our people of their political and economic systems are simple. They are:

- Equality of opportunity for youth and for others.
- Jobs for those who can work.
- Security for those who need it.
- The ending of special privilege for the few.
- The preservation of civil liberties for all.
- The enjoyment—the enjoyment of the fruits of scientific progress in a wider and constantly rising standard of living.

These are the simple, the basic things that must never be lost sight of in the turmoil and unbelievable complexity of our modern world. The inner and abiding strength of our economic and political systems is dependent upon the degree to which they fulfill these expectations.

Many subjects connected with our social economy call for immediate improvement. As examples:

- We should bring more citizens under the coverage of old-age pensions and unemployment insurance.
- We should widen the opportunities for adequate medical care.
- We should plan a better system by which persons deserving or needing gainful employment may obtain it.
- I have called for personal sacrifice, and I am assured of the willingness of almost all Americans to respond to that call. A part of the sacrifice means the payment of more money in taxes. In my budget message I will recommend that a greater portion of this great defense program be paid for from taxation than we are paying for today. No person should try, or be allowed to get rich out of the program, and the principle of tax payments in accordance with ability to pay should be constantly before our eyes to guide our legislation.

If the Congress maintains these principles the voters, putting patriotism ahead of pocketbooks, will give you their applause.

In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

- The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world.
- The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.
- The third is freedom from want, which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world.
- The fourth is freedom from fear, which, translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world.
That is no vision of a distant millennium. It is a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation. That kind of world is the very antithesis of the so-called “new order” of tyranny which the dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb.

To that new order we oppose the greater conception—the moral order. A good society is able to face schemes of world domination and foreign revolutions alike without fear.

Since the beginning of our American history we have been engaged in change, in a perpetual, peaceful revolution, a revolution which goes on steadily, quietly, adjusting itself to changing conditions without the concentration camp or the quicklime in the ditch. The world order which we seek is the cooperation of free countries, working together in a friendly, civilized society.

This nation has placed its destiny in the hands and heads and hearts of its millions of free men and women, and its faith in freedom under the guidance of God. Freedom means the supremacy of human rights everywhere. Our support goes to those who struggle to gain those rights and keep them. Our strength is our unity of purpose.

To that high concept there can be no end save victory.

• Reread the speech to answer these text-dependent questions.
• Write any additional questions you have about the text in your Reader/Writer Notebook.

1. Key Idea and Details: Summarize the “basic things” that Roosevelt says Americans expect from their political and economic systems.

2. Knowledge and Ideas: What is a fundamental belief that Roosevelt has about the need for freedom in the world?

3. Craft and Structure: What do you think the word antithesis means, based on how Roosevelt uses it in his speech?

4. Craft and Structure: Based on the conclusion of the speech, what is Roosevelt’s point of view about the role of American democracy in the world?
Working from the Text

5. Use the graphic organizer to track the four freedoms outlined in Roosevelt’s speech, then read the Bill of Rights and make connections between the two sets of freedoms. Add your notes about those amendments. Once you have completed this graphic organizer, revisit your vocabulary tree and add details to your working definition of what it means to be an American.

10. How are rights also freedoms?

11. Work in a group to complete the graphic organizer from Step 5 to compare the freedoms defined by Roosevelt and those in the Bill of Rights. What is the common theme between these documents? Compare how this theme is treated in the two texts. Synthesize the comments made by everyone, and use relevant details from each text to support your comparison.

Socratic Seminar

To prepare for the Socratic Seminar, review the readings in this activity and write a response to the following pre-seminar questions. Use details from each text to support your thinking.

Pre-seminar questions:

• Why is freedom so important to Americans?
• Which of the freedoms mentioned in the text is the most important? Explain.
• To what extent are we as individuals responsible to ensure that all Americans have their rights and freedoms?

A successful seminar depends on the participants and their willingness to engage in the conversation. The following are things to keep in mind as you participate in a Socratic Seminar:

• Come prepared with your notes, and use them.
• Talk to the participants and not the teacher or seminar leader. Use appropriate eye contact, and speak clearly and audibly.
• Refer to the texts to support your thinking or to challenge an idea.
• Paraphrase what another student has said to make sure that you understand the point before challenging the opinion.
